

The image displays a 14x14 grid of 196 hexagonal plots. Each plot contains a white hexagonal grid with black dots representing points. The dots are arranged in various patterns, including single dots, pairs, small clusters, and larger, more complex shapes. The patterns are distributed across the grid, with some appearing in multiple rows and columns, suggesting a systematic or random arrangement of point configurations.